ABOUT THE SHOW

Premiering on September 22, 1994, the American comedy sitcom, Friends, follows a group of single friends through their mid-twenties and early thirties as they try to navigate life in Manhattan, New York together. Throughout the 10 seasons of the show, viewers join the group in special places like their favorite coffee shop, Central Perk, Monica's apartment, and Joey and Chandler's apartment across the hall as they experience holidays, career issues, romantic misadventures, family drama, and just friends hanging out.

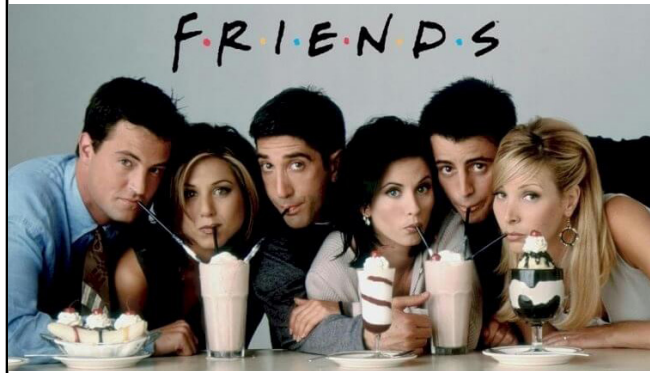

Friends coffee house: Central Perk

Friends is held together by six main characters who are all connected to each other through each other. Monica is the scrappy and compulsive younger sister to Ross who tends to be insecure but well-intentioned. Chandler, the sarcastic jokester, was roommates with Ross in college but is now roommates with Joey, the somewhat dim-witted struggling actor. Phoebe, the eccentric musician is part of the group by being a prior roommate of Monica's before Rachel. Both Monica and Rachel were best friends in high school and Ross always had a secret crush on her. She becomes the sixth member of the group after deciding to leave her impending marriage and kept lifestyle to stay with Monica and make it on her own in the city. This is where the story begins.

CAST

RACHEL GREEN

Jennifer Aniston plays character Rachel Green who becomes part of the Friend group through her connection to Monica. Rachel has an on-again, off-again relationship throughout the show and have a daughter together. She works her way from a waitress at Central Perk to a fashion buyer.

ROSS GELLER

Rachel's long-time secret admirer and Monica's older brother, Ross Geller, is played by David Schwimmer. The shy, kind-natured paleontologist becomes the "divorced three times guy" and has a son named Ben with one of his ex's. He and Rachel finally end up together in the series finale after they have Emma.

MONICA GELLER

Monica Geller is played by Courtney Cox and her apartment is one of the main locations for the show. A little neurotic, and a chef, Ross's little sister is known for her competitive nature. Later, she marries and starts a family with Chandler when they have babies with a surrogate and buy a house in the suburbs.

CHANDLER BING

Matthew Perry plays the self-deprecating, sarcastic comedian of the group, Chandler Bing. The data analyst was roommates with Ross in college and is now roommates with Joey until he and Monica move in together. His fear of commitment ends when he marries Monica.

PHOEBE BUFFAY

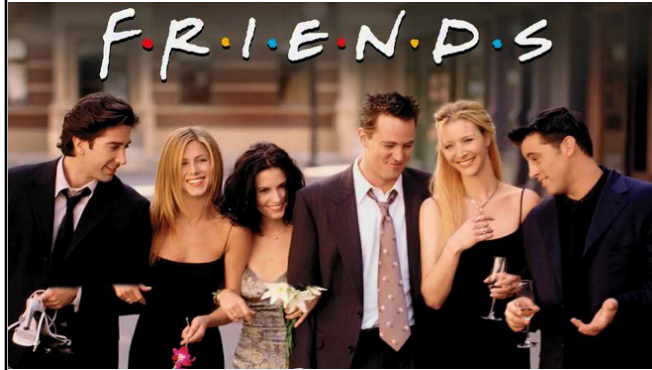

Lisa Kudrow plays Phoebe Buffay, the eccentric masseuse who is best known for the strange songs she writes and performs at Central Perk. Rough around the edges, but soft in the center, she grew up on the streets of New York after her mom died when she was a child.

JOEY TRIBBIANI

Joey Tribbiani is Chandler's struggling actor roommate played by Matt LeBlanc. He finally gets his big break starring on Days of Our Lives. Best known for his intense appetite and catch-phrase, "How you doin'?", is the well-intentioned protector of the group even if he is a little slow to catch on sometimes.
